

SPECIAL NOTICES.

THE ANNUAL MEETING OF THE SHAREHOLDERS of the East Washington Savings Bank, for the election of trustees, will be held on WEDNESDAY, June 6, 1907, between the hours of 12 noon and 2 o'clock, at the Board Room of the National Capital Bank Building, 316 Pennsylvania Ave., S.E.

Coburn is in Roof Work. Don't neglect the roof. If it's leaking let us know at once. We make roofs leak-proof. Moderate charges. Practical Tinner, 812 14th St. N.W. Phone 1400.

Remodeling Bath Rooms—Is our specialty. We do the work quickly and thoroughly. Our charges are very low. HUTCHINSON & MCCARTHY, 320 10TH ST. N.W. my3-6d

Repairing Swiss Watches—Requires exceptional skill. We do the work expertly. Watch Cleaning, 75c. Main Spring, 75c. Crystal, 10c. MAX GREENBERG, 232 10th St. my3-6d

MOTH IS BUSY. Delay in putting your winter wardrobe out of their reach may prove costly. Moth-proof Rags and fresh Tar Paper for their safekeeping. We can help you at LOWEST PRICES.

E. MORRISON PAPER CO. 1009 P. A. AVE. AND 401-03-05 ELEVENTH ST. my3-6d

EQUIPMENT COUNTS—for a good deal in Printing. So do skilled hands and intelligent supervision. Our patrons enjoy the advantages of all three. Job printing as well as largest contracts. Phone 4507 for estimates.

Geo. E. Howard, 714 12th St. PRINTER, ENGRAVER AND BOOKBINDER. my3-6d

Grafton Roof Paint—a famous, high-grade roof coating that makes old roofs like new. It's fully guaranteed.

Grafton & Son, Inc. Roofing Experts. 1714 14th St. N.W. Phone 1700. my3-6d

Printing That's Artistic.—The excellent character of the printing we do wins instant approval. Let us print the Booklet, Folder or Circular and it'll prove a business helper.

Judd & Detweiler, Inc. The Big Print Shop, 420-22 11th St. N.W. my3-6d

Up-to-date Bookbinding. We have the largest and best equipped Bookbinding in Washington. The work we do is exceptionally fine. Moderate charges. my3-6d

Leese Bifocal Glasses—Always give great satisfaction. Leese Bifocal Glasses are recommended. They are best for reading and distance. my3-6d

M. A. Leese, Manufacturing Optician, 614 9th St. N.W. my3-6d

THE SIXTH SEMI-ANNUAL DIVIDEND OF TWO AND ONE-HALF (2 1/2%) PER CENT has been declared on the preferred stock of the Washington Railway and Electric Company, payable June 1, 1907, to stockholders of record May 22, 1907.

Books for the transfer of stock will be closed from May 22 to June 1, 1907, both dates inclusive. my3-6d

OWNERS OF INVESTMENT AND BUSINESS PROPERTIES are requested to send in their particular shares of any places they wish to sell to THE HARRISON REALTY CO., 907 G St. N.W. Large properties preferred, but small ones given every consideration. my3-6d

THE BOOKS FOR THE TRANSFER OF STOCK of the Franklin Trust Company of Washington city will be closed from April 20 to May 6, 1907. my3-6d

ALL PERSONS HAVING PLEDGES ON WHICH IS DUE ONE YEAR'S INTEREST OR MORE are hereby notified to pay same or said pledges will be sold at PUBLIC AUCTION THURSDAY, MAY 16, 1907.

H. K. FULTON, JOHN DODGE CARMODY, Auctioneer. 314 9th St. N.W. my3-6d

HIGH-GRADE PIANO TUNING AND REPAIRING. Mr. W. R. Granger, late of Sanders & Stuyvesant's tuning department, is now associated with us, and with our new and improved facilities we are now prepared to do tuning and repairing of the highest grade. Estimates furnished. HUGO WORTH, Everything connected with pianos. Work building, 1110 G St. N.W. my3-6d

NOTICE TO TAXPAYERS. Increase the Value of Your Property by Having COLLECTOR'S CONTRACTS. For Cement Pavements. Construct Your Walks, Steps, Copings, Basement and Stable Floors. All Guaranteed. Room 222, Colorado Building. my3-6d

W. F. ROBERTS PRINTERS, STATIONERS, COMPANY, Inc., ENGRAVERS. 1413 NEW YORK AVE. my3-6d

WEDDING STATIONERY my3-6d

WANTED. $2.00 per gallon for medicinal whiskey. THE JOHN WEDDERBURN CO. 616 F St. N.W. my3-6d

AGENCY FOR DR. JAEGER'S WORLD-RENEWED PURE WOOL UNDERWEAR. TYSSOWSKI BROS., 720 15th St. N.W. my3-6d

SPRITUALISM. GRAND SEANCE, TRUMPET TALKING, WRITING, messages, remarkable manifestations, Wed. and Fri. nights, 8 o'clock, 1209 Fairmont (Yale) St., 11th or 14th St. cars. Private circle writing daily. my3-6d

MR. E. MILLON, PSYCHIC, 612 EYE ST. N.W.—Psychic readings and independent writings on all subjects, giving the information you wish to know. Hrs.: 9 to 4 and 8 to 10 p.m. my3-6d

WEATHER FORECAST. Partly Cloudy Tonight and Saturday—Light Winds.

Forecast till 8 p.m. Saturday: For the District of Columbia and Maryland, partly cloudy tonight and Saturday; light winds, mostly easterly.

For Virginia, partly cloudy tonight and Saturday, probably rain Saturday in western portion; light to fresh northeast to east winds.

Minimum temperature past twenty-four hours, 49; a year ago, 57.

Records for Twenty-Four Hours. The following were the readings of the thermometer and barometer at the weather bureau for the twenty-four hours beginning at 2 p.m. yesterday:

Thermometer—May 2, 4 p.m., 59; 8 p.m., 55; 12 midnight, 52; May 3, 4 a.m., 50; 8 a.m., 49; 12 noon, 50; 2 p.m., 53. Maximum, 53, at 2 p.m.; May 3; minimum, 49, at 6 a.m., May 3.

Barometer—May 2, 4 p.m., 30.19; 8 p.m., 30.18; 12 midnight, 30.22; May 3, 4 a.m., 30.18; 8 a.m., 30.24; noon, 30.18; 2 p.m., 30.15.

Tide Tables.

Today—Low tide, 6:12 a.m. and 7:06 p.m.; high tide, 12:11 a.m.

Tomorrow—Low tide, 7:41 a.m. and 8:10 p.m.; high tide, 12:44 a.m. and 1:33 p.m.

The Sun and Moon.

Today—Sun rose at 5:51 a.m.; sun sets at 6:33 p.m.

Tomorrow—Sun rises at 5 a.m.; moon rises at 12:30 p.m. today.

The City Lights.

The city lights and naphtha lamps all lighted by thirty minutes after sunset; extinguished by thirty minutes after sunrise.

All arc and incandescent lamps lighted fifteen minutes after sunset and extinguished forty-five minutes before sunrise.

Condition of the Water.

Temperature and condition of water at 8 a.m. Great Falls, temperature, 67; condition 15; Dalecarlia reservoir, temperature, 64; condition at north connection, 16; condition at south connection, 16; Georgetown distributing reservoir, temperature, 61; condition at inlet gatehouse, 22; condition at outlet gatehouse, 20; Washington city reservoir, temperature, 69; condition at inlet, 16; condition at outlet, 12.

Elevation at Great Falls, 151.9; 1.10 over dam.

PANORAMIC VIEW OF THE UNVEILING OF THE McCLELLAN STATUE.

(Photo by a Staff Photographer.)

BRONZE STATUE OF "LITTLE MAC"

Address by President at Unveiling Ceremonies.

ADDS TO BEAUTY OF CITY

Speaks of Striving for Peace on the Right Terms.

EXERCISES LATE YESTERDAY

Letter From Gen. Sickles—Views of

Gen. Howard and Gen. Dodge—

Benediction Pronounced.

Modern statuary has added a new terror to death. President Roosevelt said yesterday afternoon he gazed out upon the vast concourse of people at the unveiling of the McClellan statue. Then glancing admiringly at the great bronze reproduction of "Little Mac" which towered high above him, he added:

"But I wish on behalf of those who live in the capital of the nation to express my very profound acknowledgment to those who had the good taste to choose a great sculptor to do this work. I thank them for having erected here in so well chosen a site a statue which, not only because of the man it commemorates, but because of its own intrinsic worth, adds to the nobility and beauty of the capital city of the country.

President Roosevelt made the principal speech at the unveiling of the statue, and with Gen. Frederick D. Grant on his right and Gov. Franklin Bell, son of his left, witnessed an imposing military parade of regulars and organized militia. Mrs. McClellan, the general's widow; Mayor George B. McClellan of New York, son of the general, and Dr. George McClellan of New Jersey, a nephew, who pulled the string released the flags in which the statue was enveloped, occupied seats on the President's stand.

Brig. Gen. Henry C. Dwight, United States volunteers, presided.

Gen. William Bell, chief of staff of the army, was in command of the military parade, which consisted of three divisions, made up of infantry, artillery and cavalry of the regular army, the National Guard of the District of Columbia and the 3d Regiment of Infantry of the New Jersey National Guard. Battery A of the field artillery and two troops of cavalry from that state, in command of Brig. Gen. Dennis F. Collins.

Speech Was Typical.

The President delivered a typical speech, in which he touched upon a variety of subjects, including war, peace, national pride, the family and the qualities that make for brotherhood and fraternity. After extending a greeting on behalf of the nation to Mrs. McClellan and others, the President said:

"Gen. McClellan it was given to command in some of the hardest-fought battles and most important campaigns in the great war of this hemisphere, so that his name will be forever linked with the mighty memories that arise when we speak of Antietam and South Mountain, Fair Oaks and Malvern; so that we never can speak of the great army of the Potomac without having his name before us as the figure of Gen. McClellan, the man who organized and first led it. There was also given to him the peculiar gift, one that is possessed by but very few men, to combine the qualities that won him the enthusiastic love and admiration of the soldiers who fought with and under him, and the qualities that in civil life endeared him peculiarly to all who came in contact with him.

"We have become accustomed to accepting as a matter of course certain things which would be well nigh impossible in any country save ours; so that it seems most natural that the President of the United States, when he drives down to take part in a celebration like this, should have as his personal aids both the sons of the men who wore the blue and the sons of the men who wore the gray. As Americans when we glory in what was done under Grant, Sherman, Thomas, Sheridan, McClellan, Farragut—we can no less glory in of spiritual and moral effort and achievement.

Test of a Fortune.

"The rich man who has done nothing but accumulate riches is entitled to but the scantiest consideration; to men of real power of discernment he is an object rather of contempt than of envy. The test of a fortune should be twofold—how it was earned and how it is spent. It is with a nation as it is with the individual. Looking back through history the nation that we respect is invariably the nation that struggled, the nation that strove toward a high ideal, the nation that recognized in an obstacle something to be overcome and not something to be shirked. The nation is but the aggregate of the individuals, and what is true of national life is and must be true of each of us in his individual life.

"The man renders but a poor service to nation or to individual who preaches rest, ease, absence of endeavor as what that nation or that individual should strive after. Both you men who fought in blue and your brothers who fought in gray against you, as you look back in your lives through the years that have past, what is it in those years that you most glory in? The times of ease, the times of fatness, the times when everything went smoothly with you? Of course not; because you are men, and the really good woman, the good wife and mother who has done her full duty."

She often has a pretty hard time, the President remarked, and he added: "Yet the woman who thus with labor and anxiety brings up her children is blessed among women, blessed among men. I do not pity her in the least. I respect and admire her, and hold her worthy of admiration and honor. The selfish creature, man or woman, who reaches old age having achieved ease by shirking duty, is to be heartily despised and not envied. Our admiration is reserved for him or her who has done the real work which makes the next generation able in its turn to do its work in the country."

"Foolish Good Nature."

The President declared that a "foolish good nature, a weak good nature, incapable of righteous wrath, is almost as unfortunate an attribute for a citizen of this democracy as willingness to do wrong on the power of discernment he is an object rather of contempt than of envy. The test of a fortune should be twofold—how it was earned and how it is spent. It is with a nation as it is with the individual. Looking back through history the nation that we respect is invariably the nation that struggled, the nation that strove toward a high ideal, the nation that recognized in an obstacle something to be overcome and not something to be shirked. The nation is but the aggregate of the individuals, and what is true of national life is and must be true of each of us in his individual life.

"The man renders but a poor service to nation or to individual who preaches rest, ease, absence of endeavor as what that nation or that individual should strive after. Both you men who fought in blue and your brothers who fought in gray against you, as you look back in your lives through the years that have past, what is it in those years that you most glory in? The times of ease, the times of fatness, the times when everything went smoothly with you? Of course not; because you are men, and the really good woman, the good wife and mother who has done her full duty."

She often has a pretty hard time, the President remarked, and he added: "Yet the woman who thus with labor and anxiety brings up her children is blessed among women, blessed among men. I do not pity her in the least. I respect and admire her, and hold her worthy of admiration and honor. The selfish creature, man or woman, who reaches old age having achieved ease by shirking duty, is to be heartily despised and not envied. Our admiration is reserved for him or her who has done the real work which makes the next generation able in its turn to do its work in the country."

"Foolish Good Nature."

The President declared that a "foolish good nature, a weak good nature, incapable of righteous wrath, is almost as unfortunate an attribute for a citizen of this democracy as willingness to do wrong on the power of discernment he is an object rather of contempt than of envy. The test of a fortune should be twofold—how it was earned and how it is spent. It is with a nation as it is with the individual. Looking back through history the nation that we respect is invariably the nation that struggled, the nation that strove toward a high ideal, the nation that recognized in an obstacle something to be overcome and not something to be shirked. The nation is but the aggregate of the individuals, and what is true of national life is and must be true of each of us in his individual life.

"The man renders but a poor service to nation or to individual who preaches rest, ease, absence of endeavor as what that nation or that individual should strive after. Both you men who fought in blue and your brothers who fought in gray against you, as you look back in your lives through the years that have past, what is it in those years that you most glory in? The times of ease, the times of fatness, the times when everything went smoothly with you? Of course not; because you are men, and the really good woman, the good wife and mother who has done her full duty."

She often has a pretty hard time, the President remarked, and he added: "Yet the woman who thus with labor and anxiety brings up her children is blessed among women, blessed among men. I do not pity her in the least. I respect and admire her, and hold her worthy of admiration and honor. The selfish creature, man or woman, who reaches old age having achieved ease by shirking duty, is to be heartily despised and not envied. Our admiration is reserved for him or her who has done the real work which makes the next generation able in its turn to do its work in the country."

"Foolish Good Nature."

The President declared that a "foolish good nature, a weak good nature, incapable of righteous wrath, is almost as unfortunate an attribute for a citizen of this democracy as willingness to do wrong on the power of discernment he is an object rather of contempt than of envy. The test of a fortune should be twofold—how it was earned and how it is spent. It is with a nation as it is with the individual. Looking back through history the nation that we respect is invariably the nation that struggled, the nation that strove toward a high ideal, the nation that recognized in an obstacle something to be overcome and not something to be shirked. The nation is but the aggregate of the individuals, and what is true of national life is and must be true of each of us in his individual life.

"The man renders but a poor service to nation or to individual who preaches rest, ease, absence of endeavor as what that nation or that individual should strive after. Both you men who fought in blue and your brothers who fought in gray against you, as you look back in your lives through the years that have past, what is it in those years that you most glory in? The times of ease, the times of fatness, the times when everything went smoothly with you? Of course not; because you are men, and the really good woman, the good wife and mother who has done her full duty."

She often has a pretty hard time, the President remarked, and he added: "Yet the woman who thus with labor and anxiety brings up her children is blessed among women, blessed among men. I do not pity her in the least. I respect and admire her, and hold her worthy of admiration and honor. The selfish creature, man or woman, who reaches old age having achieved ease by shirking duty, is to be heartily despised and not envied. Our admiration is reserved for him or her who has done the real work which makes the next generation able in its turn to do its work in the country."

"Foolish Good Nature."

The President declared that a "foolish good nature, a weak good nature, incapable of righteous wrath, is almost as unfortunate an attribute for a citizen of this democracy as willingness to do wrong on the power of discernment he is an object rather of contempt than of envy. The test of a fortune should be twofold—how it was earned and how it is spent. It is with a nation as it is with the individual. Looking back through history the nation that we respect is invariably the nation that struggled, the nation that strove toward a high ideal, the nation that recognized in an obstacle something to be overcome and not something to be shirked. The nation is but the aggregate of the individuals, and what is true of national life is and must be true of each of us in his individual life.

"The man renders but a poor service to nation or to individual who preaches rest, ease, absence of endeavor as what that nation or that individual should strive after. Both you men who fought in blue and your brothers who fought in gray against you, as you look back in your lives through the years that have past, what is it in those years that you most glory in? The times of ease, the times of fatness, the times when everything went smoothly with you? Of course not; because you are men, and the really good woman, the good wife and mother who has done her full duty."

She often has a pretty hard time, the President remarked, and he added: "Yet the woman who thus with labor and anxiety brings up her children is blessed among women, blessed among men. I do not pity her in the least. I respect and admire her, and hold her worthy of admiration and honor. The selfish creature, man or woman, who reaches old age having achieved ease by shirking duty, is to be heartily despised and not envied. Our admiration is reserved for him or her who has done the real work which makes the next generation able in its turn to do its work in the country."

"Foolish Good Nature."

The President declared that a "foolish good nature, a weak good nature, incapable of righteous wrath, is almost as unfortunate an attribute for a citizen of this democracy as willingness to do wrong on the power of discernment he is an object rather of contempt than of envy. The test of a fortune should be twofold—how it was earned and how it is spent. It is with a nation as it is with the individual. Looking back through history the nation that we respect is invariably the nation that struggled, the nation that strove toward a high ideal, the nation that recognized in an obstacle something to be overcome and not something to be shirked. The nation is but the aggregate of the individuals, and what is true of national life is and must be true of each of us in his individual life.

"The man renders but a poor service to nation or to individual who preaches rest, ease, absence of endeavor as what that nation or that individual should strive after. Both you men who fought in blue and your brothers who fought in gray against you, as you look back in your lives through the years that have past, what is it in those years that you most glory in? The times of ease, the times of fatness, the times when everything went smoothly with you? Of course not; because you are men, and the really good woman, the good wife and mother who has done her full duty."

She often has a pretty hard time, the President remarked, and he added: "Yet the woman who thus with labor and anxiety brings up her children is blessed among women, blessed among men. I do not pity her in the least. I respect and admire her, and hold her worthy of admiration and honor. The selfish creature, man or woman, who reaches old age having achieved ease by shirking duty, is to be heartily despised and not envied. Our admiration is reserved for him or her who has done the real work which makes the next generation able in its turn to do its work in the country."

"Foolish Good Nature."

The President declared that a "foolish good nature, a weak good nature, incapable of righteous wrath, is almost as unfortunate an attribute for a citizen of this democracy as willingness to do wrong on the power of discernment he is an object rather of contempt than of envy. The test of a fortune should be twofold—how it was earned and how it is spent. It is with a nation as it is with the individual. Looking back through history the nation that we respect is invariably the nation that struggled, the nation that strove toward a high ideal, the nation that recognized in an obstacle something to be overcome and not something to be shirked. The nation is but the aggregate of the individuals, and what is true of national life is and must be true of each of us in his individual life.

"The man renders but a poor service to nation or to individual who preaches rest, ease, absence of endeavor as what that nation or that individual should strive after. Both you men who fought in blue and your brothers who fought in gray against you, as you look back in your lives through the years that have past, what is it in those years that you most glory in? The times of ease, the times of fatness, the times when everything went smoothly with you? Of course not; because you are men, and the really good woman, the good wife and mother who has done her full duty."

She often has a pretty hard time, the President remarked, and he added: "Yet the woman who thus with labor and anxiety brings up her children is blessed among women, blessed among men. I do not pity her in the least. I respect and admire her, and hold her worthy of admiration and honor. The selfish creature, man or woman, who reaches old age having achieved ease by shirking duty, is to be heartily despised and not envied. Our admiration is reserved for him or her who has done the real work which makes the next generation able in its turn to do its work in the country."

"Foolish Good Nature."

The President declared that a "foolish good nature, a weak good nature, incapable of righteous wrath, is almost as unfortunate an attribute for a citizen of this democracy as willingness to do wrong on the power of discernment he is an object rather of contempt than of envy. The test of a fortune should be twofold—how it was earned and how it is spent. It is with a nation as it is with the individual. Looking back through history the nation that we respect is invariably the nation that struggled, the nation that strove toward a high ideal, the nation that recognized in an obstacle something to be overcome and not something to be shirked. The nation is but the aggregate of the individuals, and what is true of national life is and must be true of each of us in his individual life.

"The man renders but a poor service to nation or to individual who preaches rest, ease, absence of endeavor as what that nation or that individual should strive after. Both you men who fought in blue and your brothers who fought in gray against you, as you look back in your lives through the years that have past, what is it in those years that you most glory in? The times of ease, the times of fatness, the times when everything went smoothly with you? Of course not; because you are men, and the really good woman, the good wife and mother who has done her full duty."

She often has a pretty hard time, the President remarked, and he added: "Yet the woman who thus with labor and anxiety brings up her children is blessed among women, blessed among men. I do not pity her in the least. I respect and admire her, and hold her worthy of admiration and honor. The selfish creature, man or woman, who reaches old age having achieved ease by shirking duty, is to be heartily despised and not envied. Our admiration is reserved for him or her who has done the real work which makes the next generation able in its turn to do its work in the country."

"Foolish Good Nature."

The President declared that a "foolish good nature, a weak good nature, incapable of righteous wrath, is almost as unfortunate an attribute for a citizen of this democracy as willingness to do wrong on the power of discernment he is an object rather of contempt than of envy. The test of a fortune should be twofold—how it was earned and how it is spent. It is with a nation as it is with the individual. Looking back through history the nation that we respect is invariably the nation that struggled, the nation that strove toward a high ideal, the nation that recognized in an obstacle something to be overcome and not something to be shirked. The nation is but the aggregate of the individuals, and what is true of national life is and must be true of each of us in his individual life.

"The man renders but a poor service to nation or to individual who preaches rest, ease, absence of endeavor as what that nation or that individual should strive after. Both you men who fought in blue and your brothers who fought in gray against you, as you look back in your lives through the years that have past, what is it in those years that you most glory in? The times of ease, the times of fatness, the times when everything went smoothly with you? Of course not; because you are men, and the really good woman, the good wife and mother who has done her full duty."

She often has a pretty hard time, the President remarked, and he added: "Yet the woman who thus with labor and anxiety brings up her children is blessed among women, blessed among men. I do not pity her in the least. I respect and admire her, and hold her worthy of admiration and honor. The selfish creature, man or woman, who reaches old age having achieved ease by shirking duty, is to be heartily despised and not envied. Our admiration is reserved for him or her who has done the real work which makes the next generation able in its turn to do its work in the country."

"Foolish Good Nature."

The President declared that a "foolish good nature, a weak good nature, incapable of righteous wrath, is almost as unfortunate an attribute for a citizen of this democracy as willingness to do wrong on the power of discernment he is an object rather of contempt than of envy. The test of a fortune should be twofold—how it was earned and how it is spent. It is with a nation as it is with the individual. Looking back through history the nation that we respect is invariably the nation that struggled, the nation that strove toward a high ideal, the nation that recognized in an obstacle something to be overcome and not something to be shirked. The nation is but the aggregate of the individuals, and what is true of national life is and must be true of each of us in his individual life.

erty, when we praise it, let us try to see that in actual practice we achieve it. When we speak of fraternity, of brotherhood, let us exercise each for himself the qualities that make for brotherhood, for fraternity. When we speak of equality let us try to realize it in the spirit of Abraham Lincoln, who pointed out that there was, of course, a certain sense in which men are not, and cannot be, equal; but who realized by his life and his deeds the profound truth that in the larger sense, in the real, the all important